DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

3. Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Brown et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,696,519, US Pat. Pub. No. US 2002/0068791 with a publication date of

Art Unit: 1713

10/17/2002 (hereinafter "Brown"); in view of Kroner et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,498,219 (hereinafter "Kroner"). Brown teaches a process for preparing an aqueous emulsion polymer including providing at least one ethylenically unsaturated monomer and a free radical red-ox initiator under emulsion polymerization conditions, the red-ox initiator system including a water soluble/water insoluble oxidizing agent and reducing agent. See Brown, Abstract; col. 2, line 20 through col. 3, line 36. Brown teaches a process for reducing the residual ethylenically unsaturated monomer content of an emulsion polymer. See Brown, Abstract; col. 4, line 56 through col. 5, line 16. The present invention differs from Brown in that Brown does not specifically teach the use of a heat exchanger. Kroner teaches, in analogous art, a method for continuously monitoring and controlling the monomer conversion during emulsion polymerization by using a heat exchanger to manipulate the heating and cooling of the reactor. See Kroner, col. 5, line 26 through col. 7, line 67. In view of Kroner, one having an ordinary skill in the art would be motivated to modify Brown by using a heat exchanger in an emulsion polymerization process to monitor the presence of residual monomer. Such modification would be obvious because one would expect that the use of a redox emulsion polymerization process as taught by Brown would be similarly useful and applicable to the emulsion polymerization process taught in Kroner.
